Justice Goldberg:

I have attached my thoughts on CSCE and the Belgrade Conference.

My understanding of the President's specific concerns is drawn from extensive conversations between my bureau and the NSC or other involved people at the White House.

Our definition of U.S. goals is broad enough to apply to the entire Belgrade proceeding, not just Principle VII or Basket III.

Suggestions for specific tactics, found in the body of the memo and in Annexes A, B and E, are based upon the definition of long-term US interests in CSCE, as well as U.S. goals at the Conference, set forth for you here.

I asked Cliff Brody to attach, as the last Annex, a paper I believe critical to the CSCE decision-making process here in the building. It has been an uphill fight, but many of the concepts in that analysis are now policy.

More needs to be done.
